Enclosures (4): Concise Statement of Relevance of Non-English References
 Additional Information
 Form PTO-1449 plus copy
 International Search Report issued by EPO

Express Mail Label No. EL 767491022 US

Date of Deposit: December 28, 2000

Concise Statement of Relevance of Non-English References:

The article “Schlegel et al., Archiv fur Mikrobiologie 38, 209-222 (1961): “Ein Submersverfahren . . . Untersuchungen” was previously submitted in an IDS to the USPTO. Applicants note that this reference is cited on page 7, lines 12-13 in the instant specification. The relevance of this reference is that it teaches a medium that is useful for growing the bacteria as described in the examples of the instant application.

WO 94/02621 is in the French language and is listed on the International Search Report as an “X” reference. The equivalency table attached to the International Search report lists this reference as being substantially equivalent to US 5,712,132, a copy of which is submitted with the IDS filed in the parent application.

EP 0583 687 listed in the International Search Report as an “X” reference. The equivalency table attached to the International Search report lists this reference as being substantially equivalent to US 5,510,252, a copy of which was previously submitted by Applicants during the prosecution of the parent application.

EP 0761 817 is in the German language and is listed on the International Search Report as a “P, X” reference. Because the equivalency table does not list any English equivalents, Applicants submitted a Derwent English abstract of this reference in the parent application. Applicants also note that this reference is not prior art, as its publication date occurred after Applicants priority date.

Additional Information:

WO 95/02062 listed on the International Search Report as an “X” reference was previously cited by the Examiner during the prosecution of the parent application.

WO 97/35999 is listed on the International Search Report as an “A” reference. Applicants note that WO 97/35999 has an international publication date of 2 October 1997. Thus, publication of this reference occurred after the 29 November 1996 priority filing date of Applicants’ application DE 196 49655.1. Thus, this published PCT application is not prior art to the instant application.
